CONGRESS INVITATION

DEAR COLLEAGUES,

We are honored and excited to announce the 3rd International Congress of Aerospace Medicine (ICAM 2026), which will be held in Istanbul between October 1-3, 2026.

The first of these congresses was held in Paris in 2022, and the second in Lisbon in 2024. The third congress will once again bring together international experts from civil and military, scientific, and commercial organizations in this field. This gathering will offer not only an exchange of information but also an opportunity to build the future together.

This year, we will hold our congress at the Hilton Bosphorus Istanbul Hotel and Convention Center, which stands out with its Bosphorus view and rich historical texture in the center of Istanbul.

Our congress center will offer our participants a high-level experience, with easy access to both the historical peninsula and the international airports connecting Istanbul to world metropolises.

Our Scientific Committee is meticulously working on a comprehensive program featuring the most current developments in aerospace medicine and innovations that will shape the future. I sincerely believe that ICAM 2026 Congress will be a comprehensive platform where knowledge is shared, new collaborations are established, and scientific and technological developments are showcased.

Your contribution and support to our congress will prepare a significant ground for building bridges among scientific stakeholders and developing global collaborations in the field of aerospace medicine. We would be greatly honored to see you among us as a part of this valuable gathering.

Sincerely,

Prof. Dr. Muzaffer ÇETİNGÜÇ
ICAM2026 Congress President

ORGANIZING INSTITUTIONS

www.asma.org

The Aerospace Medical Association (AsMA) is incorporated solely for charitable, educational, and scientific purposes. It is the largest and most representative professional membership organization in the fields of aerospace medicine and human performance. ASMA is a scientific forum that provides an environment where many different disciplines can come together and share their expertise for the benefit of all involved in air and space travel. The Association has provided expertise to numerous federal and international organizations on a wide range of issues, including aerospace medical standards, aging pilots, and the physiological stresses of flight. ASMA's members include aerospace medicine specialists, flight nurses, physiologists, psychologists, human factors specialists, physician assistants, and researchers in this field. Most of the members are from industry, civil aviation regulatory agencies, ministries of defense and military services, airlines, space programs, and universities.

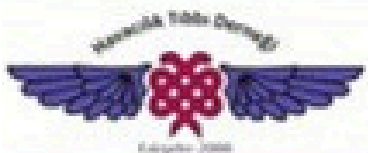

www.esam.aero

The European Society of Aerospace Medicine (ESAM) was established in 2006 as an umbrella organization in the field of Aerospace Medicine. As a pan-European independent forum, it works to support the safety and health of all people involved in aerospace operations and to coordinate European aerospace medicine interests across all national and institutional borders. We aim to assist various responsible organizations in the development and harmonization of training activities in the field of aviation and space medicine throughout Europe, to develop a continuous flow of information and dialogue between National Aviation Medicine Associations, and to encourage the sharing of scientific results and experiences. We are working towards reaching a consensus that can contribute to the scientific evidence base that should be the foundation of aviation medical decision-making processes.

www.iaasm.org

The International Academy of Aviation and Space Medicine (IAASM) was founded in 1955, is a non-profit organization dedicated to the development and sustainability of the field of aerospace medicine. This goal is being achieved thanks to the international scientific cooperation between experts with various educational and professional backgrounds, supporting our multidisciplinary structure and contributing to our valuable diversity. According to the IAASM Strategic Plan, our vision is to become a leading international, multidisciplinary organization in aerospace medicine, thanks to the leadership, knowledge, and cooperation of our Members. Our mission is to provide international leadership and mentoring, as well as to advance knowledge and understanding in the field of aerospace medicine through worldwide initiatives in education, training, research, and practice.

www.hvtd.org

The Turkish Aerospace Medical Association (TAMA) was established in 2000 by a group of retired Air Force flight physicians. As of 2025, the Association has more than 150 members. Most of the members are flight physicians and Aviation Medical Examiners (AME) who work in Aerospace Medical Centers responsible for the medical certification of civilian flight crew. Other members include pilots, psychologists, and other professionals with a strong interest in aviation medicine and psychology. Some members of the TAMA are also AsMA members. TAMA has represented Turkey as a full member of ESAM since 2009. The association organizes an annual congress and various specialist meetings and has been publishing a regular newsletter since 2006. The main mission of TAMA is to increase civil and military aviation safety by focusing on medical and psychological issues.
